

VOTED BEST BEER IN THE WORLD

HISTORY OF CAP D'ONA

Cap D'ona brewery was created in 1998 by Gregor Engler, passionate Master Distiller and pioneer of French craft beer brewers.

Thanks to his knowhow, his originality and his exigency, Cap D'ona has taken centre stage on the world beer scene.

Favoring quality over quantity, this ultra innovative and creative brewery has been awarded the Best World Beer in multiple categories and the 'Medaillée d'Or' more than 50 times in the most prestigious national and international beer competitions over the last four years.

The Cap D'ona brewery is committed day in and day out to its environmental values (it works on water and glass recycling for the circular economy, favoring km0 ...) and has a solid objective of reaching carbon in the short term.

GREGOR ENGLER MASTER BREWER

Coming from a family of brewers and engineers in Lorraine, he grew up between mountains and sea on a sailing boat going round the world and then to the south of France. He decided at the age of 23 to revive the family knowhow in this southern region which was his source of inspiration.

From the beginning, he upheld his passion for the earth by producing avant-garde beers and by shining a spotlight on the region. The name Cap D'ona - the name of a headland on the French coast in the village of Banyuls sur mer where he lives, meaning "the crest of the wave" - emphasises his commitment to excellence and his ambition to make French beer one of the best beers in the world.

Ever since, he has never stopped realising his dreams by offering us "Haute Couture" creations, making us aware with poetry, innovation and commitment, the wealth of our land, which has earned him the nickname "the beer goldsmith". Gregor Engler, awarded the Best Brewery in the world, classification in the World Beer Challenge 2021, 2022, 2023.

Press review

CAP D'ONA

For the fourth year running a French brewery has won the best beer award at the World Beer Awards.

The annual World Beer Awards, which took place in London on the 25 August, attributes the world's best beer award each year. The lucky winner? A dark beer by the niche Cap D'ona brewery in the Pyrénées- Orientales.

Among one of the most important events in the brewing industry, we can count no less than four major worldwide award ceremonies which reward the best beers each year from an array of categories. Brussels Beer Challenge, European Beer Star, World Beer Cup, and finally, the World Beer Awards in London, which has just awarded the title of the best overall dark beer to the Cap D'ona brewery, a family business located in Argelès-sur-Mer, for its Wood Aged Grand Cru - which was also awarded in the world's best barley beer category.

Press review

CAP D'ONA

The Cap D'ona brewery has just unveiled a brand new beer in an environmentally friendly bottle.

It's a day of excitement and bottling at the Cap D'ona brewery in Argelès-sur-Mer (Pyrénées-Orientales). It involves packing 8000 small 25cl and 2000 75cl bottles into new washable and reusable glass containers, in order to reduce the carbon footprint of this well renowned Catalan brewery, awarded for the best beer in the world in 2022.

"It's the first time that we've used this type of bottle, with the move to our new virtuous energy premises in Céret in 2024 in mind, this will allow us to put a deposit system in place in 2024, as well as a cleaning and reutilisation system. The labels themselves are completely biodegradable, as is the glue we use" explains Laura Piquet, head of communications at this exemplary distillery brewery.

Achieving carbon neutrality.

Today is the day with the revelation of the brand new signature beer of the season. It's a white beer made with fresh organic fruits from the local area, namely yuzu and pomegranate from La Mer Blanche domain located in Argelès-sur-Mer. "We use a kilo of fruit to every litre of passionately brewed beer" added Elodie Pujol-Engler, founder with her master brewer husband Gregor Engler, of this authentic economical Catalan gem.

In Céret, the "Cap D'ona's" will continue with the development to achieve carbon neutrality by means of local distribution channels and by reusing grain residue used for the brewing. Currently, Cap D'ona redistributes 100 tons of spent grain, a brewing by-product, to farmers from the local area to feed their animals while cereal prices explode. The constant environmental worry does not take away the talent from the exceptional brewing coupled with aging in oak barrels.

This explains how the "Englers" landed the champion of the world title at the World Beer awards in London last September. The crowning moment came through Wood Aged, a dark grand cru beer, matured for 36 months in Nuits-Saint-Georges barrels in order to integrate the gustatory pinot noir, joyau bourguignon fragrance. The great adventure of this brewery distillery founded in 1998 is picking up speed.

CAP D'ONA

The World Beer Awards Shine A Spotlight On Stellar Brewing Across The Planet.

While the American craft beer scene has indeed loomed large over the last few decades, and rightfully so if I may say so, there are still a ton of great brews spread across the globe. That's why it behooves any lover of tasty brews to pay attention to other beer competitions besides the Great American Beer Festival (GABF). These events shine a light on all the fantastic things that are happening across the globe and can lead a discerning drinker to some special pints.

The World Beer Awards (WBA) and the World Beer Cup are two events to pay attention to each year. The World Beer Cup, organized by Brewers Association, the same group that holds the GABF, awarded a slew of honors to breweries across the planet earlier this year, and now it's the World Beer Awards turn.

Held in person for the first time since the pandemic, the WBA blind tasted and scored more than 3,200 beers from more than 50 countries to identify the best beers in 10 categories. Holding heats in Brazil, Chile, Canada, Japan, Germany, the USA, and the UK, beers went through three rounds in an elimination-style format. Only the best could move on.

The country winners who emerge as the World's Best in 92 different styles then go head to head to see who is awarded the coveted title of World's Best in each of the 10 categories. It is a long and arduous process to emerge on top finally, and each of the winners are beers to be searched out. Here are the grand champions. To see the complete list of winners, go to the World Beer Awards site.

CAP D'ONA

The champion of the world of dark beer that unleashes passion.

At the World Beer Awards (London), the genuine brewers world cup, Wood Aged, a beautiful, fruity dark beer seduced judges all over the world. Right under the noses of 4000 brewers from around the world. The absolute seal of approval went to Cap D'ona, an exceptional brewery in Argelès-sur-Mer.

Selected as the best beer. Ten days after the crowning moment of Cap D'ona's delicious dark beer, a brewery in Argelès-sur-Mer, the creators of this gustatory wonder are still in shock "We're hesitating between pure joy to have landed the holy grail and an overwhelming feeling of exhaustion. Since our Wood Aged grand cru has been crowned the best dark beer in the world, we have been under a barrage, caught in a real avalanche. It's as if this news has spread like wildfire all over the world", stated an astonished Elodie-Pujol-Engler who runs Cap D'ona with Gregor, her master brewer husband.

"Overwhelmed by demands"

What's the consequence of this insane craze? "We are inundated by demands and orders coming in from everywhere, from Japan, Berlin, London and the United States. When we don't reply to their first email, they insist in the following days. Also, for the last few days we've had fans in the shop who come from Barcelona to buy a crate or two. They've understood that on the website they weren't getting anywhere, so they do the drive for the beer", said Elodie.

Cap D'ona was created in Argelès-Sur-Mer half a century ago. Our distributors quickly understood that our production capacity was limited and that the product would quickly become an absolute rarity. Orders came to us from prestigious Michelin starred restaurants and prestigious hotels that wanted to bring this touch of haute couture French beer with such a distinctive taste", Elodie continued.

To get to this unequaled flavour, Gregor et Elodie combined knowhow, expertise in master brewer techniques, innovative ideas and solutions and quality local ingredients. So, before frothing with sophistication and stimulating the taste buds in a large glass, this exceptional beer takes its time. So it's too bad for today's thirst! It takes up to thirty-six months of aging.

Aged in Nuits-Saint-Georges barrels.

It is aged in old Burgundy barrels of the grand cru Nuits-Saint-Georges, still impregnated with the legendary pinot noir variety. "This beer, it's prepared like a great French wine with demanding requirements. It's a 100% French beer with all the ingredients being local products. The rye, among others, that was used for Wood Aged comes from biodynamic farms in Cerdagne" continued Elodie Pujol-Engler.

The brewery has a limited capacity of 5000 hectolitres for thirty different beers. At Cap D'ona, the top of the world of brewers, there's no question either of speeding up the release of the barrel of "Wood Aged Grand Cru", which knows how to make itself desirable.
